Dana reads her books then engages the students in an active conversation about the stories and how books can teach us life lessons. In discussing the concept of Think...then Jump™, the everyday examples given demonstrate that being thoughtful doesn't mean they can't have fun in life. Dana follows up by discussing the importance of details and illustrations using visual examples of the process and teamwork needed. She concludes with fun exercises that help expand their imaginations and see the many possibilities the world has painted for us.
